'In Time, All Will Be Tilted' is a special exhibition for MGW which demonstrates the works of three artists from the 'UNTITLED' series, a virtual exhibition, initiated by Priyasri Art Gallery, Mumbai & AQ@Priyasri - The Artist Studio, Baroda on the onset of the lockdown.

This special feature 'In Time, All Will Be Tilted' is an attempt to restart the process of exhibiting the works in the outer reality- the white cube space from the virtual space.

Exhibition from 14th-20th January 2021.
12:00pm to 8:00pm untill 17th January, 2021
11:00pm to 7:00pm untill 20th January 2021

“Uncertainty is an uncomfortable position. But certainty is an absurd one.”

Thus, these three artists have come together, especially for MGW, to embrace this new normal- Uncertainty which has been evolved by this uniquely severe global pandemic. These artists have a common connection to land, labour and ecology all, pertaining to the concept of Anthropocene and disparities in social systems.

Kumar Misal responds to materiality by drawing upon self-made natural fibre papers, whereas Abhishek satirically mocks the ravaging urbanisation by using concrete icons. On the other hand, Roshan Anvekar's painted gunny cloth reflects upon the melancholy of regional crafts and the bewilderment of the working-class, especially during the pandemic-lockdown.

Every 'Untitled' series was followed by a webinar, conducted by Mr Nikhil Purohit, to visit the studios of the artists who were stuck during the lockdown and to get a glimpse over the ideologies of their mind.
