

“PHASE LIFT”

13thOctober – 15thNovember, 2006

NIJEENA NEELAMBARAN

Every space has a story to tell, it has its own mood every mundane object becomes interesting when you look at it from a vaster perspective. That is the great trick for artists, finding images that go beyond their own personal circumstances into something which people can connect with if they allow their mind to be suspended over the field of possibilities rather than arrest it in a concept.

“Phase Lift” is an attempt to capture the mood of a gallery under renovation, Nijeena Neelambaram showcases her works inspired by these broken spaces, her works are truly fresh and positive, everything has a cycle and every moment is perfect and complete in-itself.

The land of lost content,
where we see remnants of the just past
I see it as deeply rooted shining plain
a salvage mode
endowed with
a mythical capability to restore.
I wonder
why we run after the happy promised land
where I went
and cannot come again?
